

The Hill Group's Team Building

Meeting Facilitation and Hosting Small and Large Group Exercises, Puzzles, and Brain Teasers
Icebreakers, Brainstorming and Problem Solving

The Hill Group's Team Building Activities and Workshops can be used at your next meeting to:

- Encourage mingling, schmoozing, and socializing
- Enable your people to have shared, positive experiences
- Get the group to think outside the box (notice The Hill Group's logo?)
- Teach your people how to better work together on projects (work and non-work related)
- Enliven your meeting so every minute, and every presentation, isn't directly work related

Each workshop's objectives are developed with our clients to meet their specific goals and needs. However, the general objectives of our team building workshops are to:

- Identify, address, and resolve issues and obstacles the group may have with each other, with other groups, with customers or vendors, and with internal workflow and communication processes
- Provide a fun, interactive team building experience that enhances relationships and communication

The Hill Group's President, Matt Hill, has been speaking, training, and facilitating since 1983. He's delivered his workshops to over 40,000 people. His two books, on interpersonal skills for effectively working at trade shows and his presenting skills handbook have sold over 4,000 copies. Matt holds a B.A. in psychology from CSUN. The Hill Group is in San Jose, California.
